

Consent for Treatment Patient's Rights

Patient Rights

As a patient, you have the following rights:

- o To exercise your rights as a patient when seeing a doctor/provider.
- o If judged incompetent, a family member or guardian may exercise your rights on your behalf.
- o To personal dignity and to have your property treated with respect.
- o To voice concerns about your treatment or care and to report any disrespect to your property, without fear of discrimination or reprisal.
- o To be involved in the planning and changes of your care and treatment.
- o To be informed in advance about your care and any changes to it.
- o To receive a clear explanation of charges, including coverage by Medicare, Medicaid, and private insurance.
- o To be informed of any changes in charges within 30 working days.
- o To have your clinical records kept confidential.
- o To be informed of the collection of your medical information and its purpose.
- o To be informed that your medical information will not be disclosed, except as permitted by federal privacy laws.
- o To refuse to answer questions.
- o To review and request changes to consent forms before care is initiated.
- o To lodge a complaint against this practice or any visiting physician/provider by calling 972-559-4150. The practice is required to investigate complaints, document them, and resolve them. Complaints can also be made via the 24-hour hotline.
- o To receive appropriate pain assessment and management.
- o To formulate advance directives, with care not being withheld based on whether an advance directive exists.
- o To choose whether to participate in research, clinical trials, or experimental studies.
- o To have your communication needs met.
- o To privacy and security.
- o To have your cultural, psychological, spiritual, and personal values respected.

o To access, request amendments to, and receive a disclosure accounting of your health information as permitted by law.

Advance Directives

Advance directives ensure your healthcare decisions are followed if you become unconscious or unable to speak for yourself. Texas law allows the use of various advance directives, including:

- Living Will Directives
- Out of Hospital DNR (Do Not Resuscitate)
- Medical Power of Attorney
- Declarations of Mental Health Statement

Patient Responsibilities

To receive services through our practice, you are responsible for:

- o Signing an informed consent for care before receiving medical treatment.
- o Giving complete and accurate health information.
- o Being available for scheduled appointments and canceling when necessary. Failure to cancel may result in a charge for the visit.
- o Actively participating in the planning of your care.
- o Following your prescribed treatment plan.
- o Paying for services that are not covered by insurance.
- o Notifying your provider about any changes in your health status.
- o Informing staff about any changes in insurance or relationships with other healthcare providers.
- o Reading the notice and privacy policies and asking questions if something is unclear.
